Padel Equipment with Tilly

It has been fantastic to see so many Members enjoying the new Padel courts since opening, I have enjoyed meeting many members over the past few days and having the opportunity to play.

We now have a range of Padel rackets in the Sports Shop and a number of models available to demo with more to arrive shortly.

There are three main components to a Padel racket:

- Profile; the area around the edge
- The Core; the inside
- Impact Surface; the surface covering the core.

The profile provides strength to the racket as it is the area most prone to hitting the floor or walls. It is usually made up of tubular laminated layers of fibreglass, carbon fibre or graphite before being soaked in epoxy resin or wax.

The core is made up of either foam or EVA rubber. EVA rubber is harder (and more durable), providing more control but less power. It is less forgiving, so you need a good technique in order to see the benefits.

The impact surface is made up of fibreglass, carbon fibre or graphite in up to 3 layers (impacting the hardness of the racket). Less layers allow for more power but is not as strong as the rackets with more layers which tend to be more durable but less power.

We have a range of padel's available to buy in the shop and Members are welcome to try out before purchasing. There are also padel's which can be leant out if you wish to just try the new game.

If you have any questions regarding Padel equipment, please do not hesitate to get in contact with Tilly who is at the Sports Shop Tuesday – Saturday. Alternatively, you can email Tilly:
